

DEATH KEEL TO STATE BANKS SEEN IN NEXT RULING

CONGRESS HELD TO WEIGH IN TO SET NATIONAL SYSTEM

BRITISH AND ITALIAN PREMIERS IN HISTORIC MEETING

Washington, March 30 (AP)—Interpreted as the death-knell of the state banking system, the ruling of the Supreme Court today issued by Chief Justice Brandeis, which would permit Congress to confer commercial banking authority on a single national commercial banking system.

The opinion, which was submitted to the Senate banking and currency committee, cited many decisions of the Supreme Court which would permit Congress to confer commercial banking authority on a single national commercial banking system.

LOANS RESTRICTED
Federal Reserve Board members were told to be of the opinion that "the establishment of a unified system of banking under national supervision is essential to fundamental banking reform."

The ruling laid down the following program to establish a single banking system:

- 1.—To restrict the business of receiving deposits subject to withdrawal by check to national banks and thereby subject all commercial banking to national regulation and supervision.
- 2.—A prohibition against the receipt of deposits subject to withdrawal by check except by banks organized under the laws of the United States.
- 3.—A prohibition against any bank organized under federal law making loans or extending credit to, depositing any of its funds in, or permitting the use of any of its facilities for, any commercial banking institution not organized under federal laws.
- 4.—A provision imposing a prohibition on all checks or substitutes thereon drawn upon or payable to any bank not organized under federal law.

"If such legislation is enacted, the effective date necessarily would have to be postponed for a sufficient length of time to avoid too sudden and revolutionary a change in our existing financial structure and to allow time for existing state banks to adjust themselves to the situation, by converting into national banks or disincorporating the financial structure of commercial banking," Wyatt said.

The opinion was based on the authority of Congress to establish the National and Federal Reserve systems and take necessary action to promote the efficiency of the systems; in protect the currency; to remove obstructions to interstate commerce, which arise through bank failures.

Dr. Roosevelt on Wall St.

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

Wall Street stepped up and got its big appetite for Roosevelt's deal and sulphur and molasses.

It's a bitter pill to swallow in liquid form. The President lifts the burden of proof off the lawyer and slaps the mustard plaster on the seller.

We watched our stocks go down like a snake swallowing an egg. We followed our broker's advice and flocked with our hands from the pump handle. And when the great fall out of the furnace we were paid off in cinders.

We purchased bonds of the glorious "Belshazzar" republic guaranteed by the President without a penny and a diplomat minus portfolio. Belshazzar's republic was in a week and its rulers galloped over the mountains at a pace that would make a great sea.

The bonds are now wallpaper for the kitchen. Salt will not save them. But we are glad that President Roosevelt will protect us in the future in things that are making the kitchen larger.

last 12 years, was attributed to destructive competition between the federal and state governments. At federal laws were modified to permit the national banks to compete with the state banks, regulated state institutions safeguards that weakened both systems were removed.

Wyatt declared that states could not legally, by granting increasingly liberal powers to state banks, create a competitive situation that makes it impossible for Congress to preserve the existence of the National banking system with equipment that is obsolete and necessary to make it a safe and effective system and at the same time deny the right of Congress to meet the situation by putting an end to such competition.

INTERVIEW PROBE LIKELY
Washington, March 30 (AP)—Senator Undermyer, for more than a quarter of a century an investigator of stock markets and banks, called the capital to discuss with members of the Roosevelt administration the details of legislation to bring federal regulation of the exchange.

Coincidental with his visit came word from the Senate market and bank investigating committee that Undermyer might become associate with the investigation committee possibly in the post of an adviser to Ferdinand Pecora, co-chairman of the committee.

Senator Fletcher (D., Fla.), chairman of the committee, said the matter of bringing Undermyer into the investigation would be met before the steering committee of the inquiry tomorrow.

STOCKS GOING GREEN AS WAR CHANCE
Washington, March 30 (AP)—Speeding up of political appointments by the Roosevelt administration may be expected soon.

One of the first to be transmitted to the Senate was said authoritatively will be the nomination of Harry Woodring, former governor of Kansas, to be assistant Secretary of War.

Another will be Harry M. Dunning, slated for collection of the post in New York. He was recommended by Edward J. Flynn, and staunch Roosevelt supporter.

So rapidly has the new administration been preparing and pushing in passage new legislation to deal with economic conditions that it has been able to give but little time to patronage.

$75,000 Request, Estate Under $1000
New York, March 30 (AP)—Although the will of James Mitchell Hoyt, Wall St. broker, which was filed here, made bequests of more than $750,000 to relatives, it was disclosed in a report that the Hoyt estate is worth less than $1000.

Mr. Hoyt, who died on March 29, was a partner in the Stock Exchange firm of Price & White, which failed in 1929.

ENGINEER HELD 3 JAPS DIED IN PLANE IN FRAUD

New Haven, Ct., March 30 (AP)—Edward Rosend-Poole, mining engineer and accountant, is held in the New Haven County Jail here awaiting transfer by federal authorities in Philadelphia on a charge of using the mails to defraud. He has been held in default of $5000 bonds, set by United States Commissioner Harry Kraus at Waterbury.

Rosend-Poole was arrested on complaint of Louis B. M. Carroll, a Department of Justice agent, at Philadelphia. Pending his trial, Rosend-Poole has been writing mystery stories. His trial is expected shortly and he will be taken to Philadelphia by Postal Inspector Hawsorth of that city.

Rosend-Poole was a close friend of J. Howard Hays, broker, who killed himself last August 1 in Reichenbach, Ct., just before he was due to appear in court for sentence for embezzlement.

Swedish Socialists Score Fascist Rule
Stockholm, March 30 (AP)—A resolution protesting against the Fascist dictatorship in Germany as dangerous to "world peace, democracy, and the working class throughout the world," was adopted here at a mass meeting of 400 Stockholm Socialists. B. J. PROF. O. K.'S ROOSEVELT

That President Roosevelt is doing the wise thing in basting his farm relief and reforestation program through Congress while the politicians are still influenced emotionally by the renewed interest in the change of administration is the opinion of Prof. Edward Collier of Boston University's college of business administration.

He pointed out that although the President is doing a wonderful job, too optimistic a view should not be taken for an immediate recovery from the depression.

Prof. Virgil Reed, also of the college of business administration faculty, agreed with him.

RENOUNCED BY EINSTEIN
It was learned today that Prof. Albert Einstein has taken steps to renounce his Prussian citizenship.

He is now in Brussels, after a recent visit to America.

Prof. Einstein, a Jew, was born in Ulm, Germany, but subsequently his family moved to Switzerland and he became a Swiss citizen.

In 1913 he was called to the directorship of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Physics, member of the Prussian Academy of Science, and became a Prussian citizen.

Before sailing recently from the United States for Europe the professor said:

"I do not intend to put my foot on German soil again as long as conditions in Germany are as they are."

"TROUBLE WITH AMERICA"
The American composer, Werner Janssen, scheduled to conduct the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra April 8 has been informed changes will have to be made in the program he plans "because we are having trouble with America just now."

Johann Herberich, head of the orchestra directorate, informed Janssen he could not play Rubin Goldmark's composition "Gedächtnis," which the author had planned to introduce to Berlin.

Despite this report, two American compositions, played by the Philharmonic last night received generous applause.

BRANDED "KATZENHAMMER"
A prominent Nazi, Arthur Rosenberg, called the appeal of Jewish societies "Katzengammer."

Denying the anti-German campaign was subsiding abroad, he wrote:

"Jews throughout the world will find the time is past when Germany submits to hounding of dirty Galician immigrants."

Rosenberg declared the reaction abroad is a revival of a warlike spirit and that irretrievable damage already has been done for which Jews must suffer the consequences.

Reference to the Galician Jews called the prediction by a German news agency that all eastern Jews who entered Germany since 1918 were to be deported.

The poverty-stricken population of 800,000 Jews in Galicia were in the theater of war operations, and many reached safety in Germany.

Polish Nationalists conducted a vendetta against them during the years, and later, when Poland was at war with Ukraine and Bolsheviks, hundreds of Galician Jews were slain and wounded. Emigration to Germany continued.

U.S. Probes Prussian Ban on Kathleen Kersting
Wichita, Kan., March 30 (AP)—The case of Kathleen Kersting, Wichita nurse, who was forced to leave East Prussia and go to Berlin because she was suspected of being a Jewess, has been brought to the attention of the German Government.

United States Senator George McGill of Kansas telegraphed his friends here today that the embassy in Berlin had called Secretary Hull.

The matter will be taken up immediately with German authorities. There is no reason to fear for Miss Kersting's safety.

She recently cabled requests that proof be furnished by German authorities that she is of gentile birth.

AMERICAN BOOY PLANS PROBE IN GERMANY

Catholic, Protestant, Jew Would Report on Conditions

New York, March 30 (AP)—The American State department will be asked by the American Jewish congress to use its "good offices" in bringing about a cessation of the Hitler government's boycott against Jews in Germany.

Rabbi Stephen S. Wise and Bernard S. Deutch, president of the congress were in Washington today in person, such a request to the American ambassador in Germany, Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

The "good offices," it was understood, would be limited to an informal representation by the American ambassador in Germany to the German foreign office, or by Secretary Hull's attitude, which the boycott movement is regarded by a large segment of American opinion.

A few hours earlier the American committee on religious rights and minorities, meeting at the Yale Club here, and with representatives of the society from Boston and Washington in attendance, voted to send an investigating commission to Germany to investigate on the spot the reports of Jewish persecution by the Nazi following the Anschluss.

The commission plan, which was approved by the committee, was to be sent to Germany next week, if its entry into Germany is permitted by the German government.

President Needs No Spokesman, Says Davis
Plymouth, Pa., March 30 (AP)—When Norman H. Davis, reappointed by President Roosevelt as chief of the American delegation to the disarmament conference, arrived here, British newspapermen suggested to him that he be regarded as the "voice of President."

Davis replied that President Roosevelt has already shown that his voice is loud enough to speak for himself.

Norman Davis, with his wife in a hotel in Hyde Park, London, he said:

"I intend to make temporary arrangements in connection with the world economic conference, but until I see President MacDonal I can say nothing regarding what I may be able to achieve."

ACCIDENT OR SUICIDE WILL BE DEFENSE OF COSTELLO WIDOW

WAIT FOR STATE TO DISCLOSE ITS CASE

Examination of Dead Captain's Organs Is Held Up

Either accidental poisoning or suicide will be blamed for the death of Mrs. Costello, defense counsel for Mrs. Jessie B. Costello, jailed widow, declared today.

One of them has already been decided upon but will not be announced until the State formally announces evidence as the cause of death and gives the time and place they intend to claim.

Such information was ordered given to the defense at a hearing before Judge Fosdick.

ANAT DEFENSE EXPERT

The organs have already been examined by the government by Dr. J. Stewart Romney of Boston, Dr. William Ross, Harvard toxicologist; Dr. George Burgess Magrath of Boston, and Medical Examiner S. Chase Tucker of Essex County.

Judge Fosdick's only objection to permission for immediate defense analysis was the failure to name the expert into whose care the organs would be placed. He gave counsel until Monday to name the doctor.

IMPERSONATION TELLS

Impersonation in jail is beginning to tell upon Mrs. Costello, according to jail officials, although the 31-year-old widow has received an average of 10 letters a day with messages of assurance that she will be acquitted.

Through her counsel, she said she has heard much criticism of the smiler she wore as she left her home under arrest and her failure to bid farewell to her three children at the time of her arrest.

"They claim I am all froth and laughter; that I can't be serious; that I am too carefree and gay; that I care little for my three children," she said.

WID AS TOLD

"Well, they're all wrong. I did hurry out of my home on the night of my arrest and greet photographers and reporters with a smile. I did go without saying goodbye to my children."

"How could I say goodbye to them? How could I drag them through the mud of this case?"

"I was advised it was the best thing to do as long as I am innocent and I tried to do what I was told. If I want out crying they would surely say I felt guilty."

ASSAULT FIEND PROBE BALKED

New York, March 29 (AP)—Checked-in in their efforts to run down the man who criminally assaulted five-year-old Barbara Wiles and then strangled her to death with a rope, officials today threw every one of New York's 17,500 policemen into the hunt.

A general order was issued instructing police to make periodic checkups of every laundry and tailor shop on their beats in an attempt to trap the slayer through blood-stained clothing.

The dead child, daughter of an English-born cricket player, was the sixth girl under seven years of age to be thus attacked in Brooklyn within two years. Four of the victims died. Two other attacks were in collisions within a mile of the basement in which the Wiles child met death.

Rochester, N. H., March 30 (AP)—Frank Gould, 70, was buried today the shutters which have concealed every window in his nine-room home since he made them, 30 years ago, remained unopened.

Two generations of Rochester citizens long had wondered why the shutters barred the windows. Only Gould and his wife knew the reason and neither of them ever had told it.

Last night, Mrs. Gould was alone in the house, and like every other night for 30 years, the shimmering light of a kerosene lamp, filtering through slats in the shutters, gave the only sign of habitation.

Phoenix, Ariz., March 30 (AP)—Superior Judge Howard C. Spinkman, today, sentenced "Frank" Judd, 31, to two years in their attempt to obtain for her another trial on an unused murder charge.

Superior Judge Howard C. Spinkman decided to act on a motion that Mrs. Judd be tried on a charge of murdering Henry Ramon, one of her two women victims, and ordered the dismissal of the information in this case.

Judge Spinkman held that whatever action the Arizona board of pardons and parole may take on her plea for clemency, it would be a waste of time to try her on the second murder charge.

Mrs. Judd is under sentence to be hanged April 14 on conviction of murdering Agnes Anne Leno.

FARM RELIEF RIPT LOOMS IN SENATE

Price Fixing Plan Is Favored; Opposed by Roosevelt

Washington, March 30 (INS)—The first break in the Senate's solid support of the administration farm relief bill loomed today with the Senate agriculture committee ready to include modified Simpson price-fixing plan as an alternative measure of federal aid to farmers.

The administration repudiated the Simpson plan in drafting its bill. The committee undoubtedly will approve it with a howl to the several hundred thousand members of the National Farmers' Union.

The Simpson plan would give the government power to fix prices to the producer on farm products and guarantee him cost of production on the portion of each crop consumed in domestic markets.

Opponents of the administration plan already have learned that President Roosevelt dominates the committee. One substitute plan, of foreign origin, would give the administration a permanent right to fix prices.

The committee did not disclose the vote but it worked defeat for all efforts to abandon the President's plan.

The Simpson plan probably will be adopted despite the administration's position, but there will be nothing in the bill to force the administration to use it.

FEDERAL COURT 2 MARINES DIE JUDGES MAY DOODGE CUT IN CRASH ON TURNPIKE

Federal court judges and many others in special pay classes may escape the government salary cut that will top off more than $3,000,000 from the annual salaries of 7000 others in the Boston district, it was indicated today.

Under the law, salaries of judges may be increased but not decreased. In a move of some years ago, that was designed to block illegal attempts to oust judges by reducing salaries.

The status of the others will come under whatever interpretation is placed upon the word "compensation" as it is used in the order of President Roosevelt.

United States commissioners and referees in bankruptcy are paid on a fee basis, the former of a rate of $3 for every case heard by him.

The largest class of employees hit by the pay cut will be those in the postal district of which there are 2000 persons. In the course of a year $144,000 will be taken from their pay which now totals $1,744,000.

Two marines, one a Boston man, are dead today and a third, whose family lives in Somerville, is in a serious condition at Portsmouth, N. H. Navy Hospital with injuries sustained when their machine was wrecked in the Newburyport Turnpike at Bowley early last night.

The two, who were killed instantly, were Corp. Clark J. Reed, 28, of Weymouth, Pa., and Private John J. McKeever, 24, of Rockford, Ill.

The injured man, who is suffering from severe cuts and bruises, is Private George C. Baid, 22, of Dana Ave., Somerville. All were attached to the Portsmouth barracks.

Private Sumner Tang, owner of the wrecked car, will be questioned by Marine Corps officials when he arrives at the barracks today. His license and registration were found in Corp. Reed's pockets.

So far, no suspect in the accident as far as police can learn. The three marines were discovered near the wrecked car by passing motorists. The machine apparently failed in the turnpike and left the road, crashing into a tree.

Let Beer Do It

Beer and Gasoline May Save Us

You have heard that the humble glass or mug of beer will help solve Uncle Sam's financial problems. Bringing $150,000,000 a year or more. But you may not have heard about the plan of Paulshor, N. J. to make beer pay the expenses of the town and do away with taxes. Mayor Ward advocates a town bar to be called "Paulshor Drinking Emporium." Profits from the emporium are expected to make taxes unnecessary.

That could be done without overtaxing and crippling the beer business if cities, towns and villages knew enough to own their own utilities, light, power, etc. But they don't know enough—and that's another story. With gasoline taxes, building roads, beer taxes, paying municipal expenses, we should be living in an age of "liquidity."

An energetic American business man, the whole country, Chicago especially, knows him well. He was telling about a poker game of another with another Chicago business man. It was a friendly game. "But," said the first, "that man didn't care to be bluffed. It was 'blind poker,' where you see one card and wonder what the others are. The man that didn't want to be bluffed had in the end a pair of sixes. The other man had a three exposed but might have had two more hidden. The betting began. The first man bet four hundred dollars. The man with the three exposed bet a thousand dollars. The first man put up ten thousand dollars more. Then the second man with the three exposed called the ten thousand and put in all the chips he had—sixteen thousand dollars worth.

"The first man called him, showed his pair of sixes and was something over twenty six thousand dollars."

In telling the story he remarked, "That was before 1929, when money didn't mean anything." Neither of the men is playing that kind of a game now.

Mr. Julian, Democratic committeeman from Ohio, says Governor Roosevelt "has need of much co-operation," which is true. Mr. Julian also believes "the same type of assistance accorded to President Wilson during the World War must precede the emergence of America from depression."

If there is to be a repetition of that "type of assistance" heaven save Uncle Sam.

President Wilson received very complete co-operation, shipping 3,000,000 Americans to Europe and ten thousand million American dollars, spending a billion on airplanes that wouldn't fly, a billion on floating ships that never went to sea and other billions on "cost plus contracts" under which "the more you charged Uncle Sam for raw materials the more you made."

The country is now struggling to pay for and live down the "type of assistance" that President Wilson used so lavishly. The kind Lord forbid another dose of it.

Bennett Clark, son of the late Capt. Clark, Speaker of the House, takes his seat in the Senate, announcing as his "principal and immediate aim," LOWER TARIFFS.

This will be good news for foreign countries anxious to pour in here the product of underpaid labor that gets its wages in depreciated currency.

It is not such good news for twelve million Americans that would like to get back to their jobs.

Perhaps, after Mr. Clark has looked around and sees how many American factories have been closed by European competition, he may discover that lower tariffs would mean lower wages, where there are ANY wages, and less employment.

A brilliant writer of short editorials in the Miami Herald says "Dictator Hitler is confident, thinks highly of himself. Such men succeed."

They do, sometimes—not always. Rienzi, the forerunner of Mussolini, thought highly of himself and allowed himself to be addressed as "God."

But a butcher's knife put an end to him. The most successful men are those that have modesty in themselves, for any man, if he is intelligent, must know that he amounts to little.

Lincoln did not "think highly of himself." Nor did Napoleon at first; in fact, he wanted to commit suicide.

Socrates, who taught Plato, who in turn taught Aristotle, thought little of himself. He said he could teach the wisest man in Greece because he knew that he knew nothing.

Hitler represents the kind of self-confidence that does NOT succeed, usually.

He says to the German people, "Let me be dictator for four years; then I'll fail to settle your problems crumby me."

That sounds like a fair offer, but why let an overconfident gentleman crucify the German people for four years when they, of all nations, are the most thoroughly educated and should be able to decide questions for themselves.

Crime and Easy Money

A Lesson to Youth

A group of young men, members of the "Turtle Neck Gang," have been caught by the police and imprisoned after a series of 38 robberies in the last few months.

These young men were scarcely out of their teens.

Their auto thefts gave them a few hours of excitement; their stolen goods furnished them the medium for a few hours of what they probably called pleasure.

When they were arrested they were penniless. If gotten money slip through the fingers easily. The adage that crime does not pay is as old as life itself, and true.

For the few hours of such satisfaction as they got from their crimes, these young men will probably pay in jail what should have been the most fruitful years of their lives.

Young men, and women, too, will read these few lines, written especially for their benefit. Avoid crime and easy money. They do not bring happiness and security. They are expensive in the long run.

Daily Bible Text "Strangers shall stand and feed shall be your plowmen and your vine dressers."—Isaiah 61: 4. By Rev. A. V. Bliss, D. D., Congregational minister, Boston. Next text by Rev. M. E. Jacques, Baptist Church, West Bridgewater.

EVENING

Two of a Mind

In his recent book, "Looking Forward," President Roosevelt said of the League of Nations: "Too often through these years its major function has not been the broad overhauling purpose of world peace but rather a mere meeting place for the political discussion of strictly European political national difficulties. In these the United States should have no part." But the League Court is a part of the League's political organization. If the United States does not belong in one, it also belongs out of the other. For they are the same thing. Japan went in—and came out. Uncle Sam will be wise in STAYING OUT.

O. O. McIntyre

New York Day by Day

Elaborate Playroom

NEW YORK, March 30.—Perhaps the most elaborate playroom of the moment in town has been rigged up by Bob Winans, husband of the famous actress, Katharine Brush, for her son, Bob. Winans acquired an enormous north-light studio, adjoining his co-operation apartment in the Sutton Place tower.

While interior decorators are working out details for outfitting the room for Miss Brush, her husband has been busy erecting a red toy steam train with a yard of tracks to one of the rooms.

The vacant apartment suggested expansion of the idea.

More tracks were laid. More trains—bright and passenger-acquired. Tunnels were built, along with grass crossings and sidings. Soon the entire apartment became a tangle of tracks, signal towers and imposing stations, with a central control board. Thus, an operator may send trains in all directions.

They shoot down hallways, are switched off into the kitchen, bedrooms, up and down inclines and so on. While originally devised for the amusement of the child, the train keeps them there for the rest of the evening. And, of course, some old folk invariably, and playfully, maneuver a head-on collision.

H. T. Webster, Herb Roth and Milt Gross occupy a studio high up in the Chrysler building, where they take tolls with lefty thoughtfulness. A tedium one day each drew a sketch on the wall. Other artists, dropping in, also offered contributions, and now and then an European insider, such as Sam of Paris, or the West of London, added to the galaxy.

As a result, the walls are now almost covered with hastily drawn bits that, if detached, would be worth something to collectors.

Brown's chop house, in other years had the most complete collection of autographed pictures of celebrities. Today, the widest range, in the halls of Arrowhead.

Diamond Jim Brady was collector of autographed stage pictures, too, and the widest array of snapshots, kodaked in person, are those of Bert Levey, who has pictures of practically every performer of the stage, and who, snatched informally in their dressing rooms, has a large part of the world's "celebrities."

In preparing the banquet for Bull Cobb, Brody's new novel, "See-See," to be serialized in a magazine, the ad writers sought her father for suggestions. They thought it might be a good idea to run a picture of Cobb and wanted him to write a line under it. He dashed off a line, "See-See," and the first, "Falling seeds," the second, "Mileage in Sardinia."

DIZZY DAYS! You keep trying to figure them out. Keep thinking back—30, 40, 50 years maybe—to the time when you were a little shaver, listening to Dad's mind.

No doubt in Dad's mind! He said all that, and he knew his own barnyard or country store.

Seemed to know like a well as he knew his own barnyard or country store.

And why not? Dad had been living in that store of barnyard all his days, and his dad before him. Far as he knew, the world didn't exist.

But that's not so. He really was good—wasn't he? When "Good Old Days"—if they really were good—won't come back.

Those "Good Old Days" when they won't be those "Good Old Days." Even if we use superhuman patience, courage and shrewdness, and stand our ground and spread our wings and work together for the Common Good, the Good Old Days OF YOUR GRAND FATHER'S TIME will never come back.

But that's not so. He really was good—wasn't he? When "Good Old Days"—if they really were good—won't come back.

Forced Marches to Reform

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Foundations of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Boston Evening American

LESS THAN A MONTH has elapsed since the inauguration and yet moving with confident speed, the President has been writing his campaign program into law.

The Senate has passed the measure authorizing the creation of the conservation arm which will take half a million of the jobs out of the headlines. Now he moves to carry out the campaign promise that hereafter:

In the marketing of securities there shall be full publicity in respect to these securities and they shall be sold only to investors who are able to bear the risk of the investment.

There has been clamorous demand for a generation. Everyone, including some who are to be affected by the economies, has been denouncing the heads of government for not acting to end the waste and to bring the cost of government within its revenue raised by reasonable taxes. Now it is being done.

The reason it was not done before was the fear of politicians to arouse the wrath of the organized forces and powerful individuals. As a hearing, and shall hereafter, more clamor against anything that would curtail the government's revenue than the clamor of the reformers.

That has been the situation since the time of the first clamor of reform. It has been the fear of politicians to arouse the wrath of the organized forces and powerful individuals. As a hearing, and shall hereafter, more clamor against anything that would curtail the government's revenue than the clamor of the reformers.

Message to Parents

Two innocent young children, happy and carefree, left their homes in Roxbury to play.

Five weeks later their little bodies are found in the waters of Muddy river, in the Newbury market.

You who are parents, especially mothers, can imagine the grief, the suspense and the terrible anxiety that hung for five weeks over these homes. There is no suffering more poignant than uncertainty over the fate of helpless children who are your own flesh and bone.

These mothers have borne their grief and loss with Spartan courage. They have a message for all parents. It is brief and simple Read it!

Watch your children night and day. Make them play where you can keep your eyes on them. Don't let them near water, unless there is someone big enough to show them where danger is and to protect them. You will find this hard, but it might save your great sorrow and tears.
